"Lets have a quarier's worth," our miner said,
And, quick as thought, he soon in bed was laid.
He slept a weary sleep, and the next morn arose.
The more refreshed, for he had doffed his clother.
Those pants he did not with sgain to wear.
And thought perhaps his host would send out for a pair:
He called out for the landford, and much surprised was he.
Our friend Mike Cohen, of the "Red House," there "10 see.
"Unst, Mike, you in this line!" our miner said:
"Then bring me up some pants, and something for my head."
Mike brought them up, and quick as thought,
Our friend the miner a new suit had bought,
Paid down his money, then, looking in the glass,
ills compliments to Mike he thus did pass:
"Whene'er a man wants rigging out in somethin
new,

niete to him wants rigging out in something news, news, Mike. I'll send him straight to And now, friend, Mike, pray toll me where For breakinst I can get good fare?"
"I'lls but next door, a Restaurant I keep!"
Says Mike, "and you will find it. good and cheap!, The miner went, and breakfast had, And said that for a quarter 'twasan't bad; For Mike, I see, knows how to do the trade, And put all others right into the shade. ja13

Work for our Chamber of Commerce Now that we have a Chamber of Commerce organized, we may expect that our commercial interests will be better looked after than has hitherto been the case. W do not, of course, mean to imply by this that they will be possessed of any powers of directly effecting this important object; but they will, by the combination of individual opinions, be able to arrive at a correct idea of what ought to be done, to place us in the most advantageous position possible, and will thus afford our Government a pretty safe ground to work upon, either by legislation or by negotiation. This newly formed body will find we have no doubt, that there is plenty of room for them to act. Apart from the vast field that lies before them for opening new channels of trade with our nort the duty that devolves upon them of bringing to light, and pointing out the remedy of our local deficiencies; there is very much in the state of our commercial relations with the United States, and even with the adjacent colony that calls for their serious attention. We have set out with free trade principles, and have no doubt been a gainer thereby in more ways than one, but our liberality has not had many imitators among our neighbors on this coast. Notwithstanding the United States long ago perceived the necessity and advantages of reciprocity with the British North American provinces, and concluded a treaty for that purpose with them. Still the have not yet extended the principle to IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN the western slope of the Rocky Mountains. An American statesman has observed that IRON the various parts of the American continent like those of the human body, are wonderfully adapted to each other. The different portions of the continent do not profitably admit of any commercial separation, and the principle of unrestricted intercourse with the British North American Possessions has been approved alike by free traders and protectionists at all periods of our national existence." If this is the fact with reference to the eastern portion of the continent, which was more particularly in view of the writer of the above sentences, how much more is it applicable to the States and Colonies of the east Pacific. The latter are, by their very isolation from the rest of the continent for more dependant upon and adapted for each other, than Canada and the Northern States of the Atlantic. There is little doubt but that the principle would have been at the same time extended to us, had we then been sufficiently developed at the negotiation of the Reciprocity Treaty, to have To land per "Julia," attracted any attention. As it was ou insignificance and the absence of local government capable of looking after our wants, caused us to be entirely overlooked There is no reason, however why this state of things should continue. The returns of the past year must convince the people of California that we will henceforth be among their best, if not the best of their customers that they have everything to gain and nothing to lose by making trade between us as free as possible. We have taken the first step. Of our free port system they have nothing to The best of Ales, Wines, Spirits, &c. complain. In simple justice we are entitled to similar favors. The trade between the ports of this coast, at least as to home productions, should be as free as if it were all in one cour we admit their flour, fruits and wines. There should be reciprocity, pure and simple. In conjunction with reciprocity between this colony and California and Oregon, comes the question of the expediency of intercolonia free trade in our respective productions. There is no reason for the present stringency of the revenue laws of British Columbia. system of discriminating duties might be framed so as to admit our manufactures of native produce into that Colony free. This would aid the development of our resources without materially affecting the annual in come of that Government. We are aware that the Home Government have in past times disapproved of a similar course of proceeding on the part of some of the eastern The whole to conclude with the Laughable Farce of colonies, but the ideas which at that time dictated their disapproval may be said to be now exploded, and there is not the slightest country is now disposed far less than formerly to interfere with her colonies in their legislation for their mutual benefit, conscious as she is that they should naturally be the best judges of their own requirements. Closely connected with the question of reciprocity of trade in the productions of this colony and those of the States on this coast, is that of the necessity of some modification of the navigation laws of one or both countries. At present they operate very une qually. For the last forty-five years the United States have steadily refused to allow a vessel belonging wholly or in part to a subject of any foreign power to carry goods between any two American ports. So strict are they in carrying out this law, that they will not allow it to be evaded by foreign vessels running between New York, San Francisco and the Isthmus of Panama, carrying on through traffic; the passage of the goods through the latter country being held not to divest them of their transitory character. Now, although our navigation laws are, in theory, similar to the American laws in this respect, yet circumstances tend to make them not nearly s exclusive in their effects. Take their opera tion in these waters as an example. Here we are, three colonies lying contiguous to each other, all a portion of the British dominions. The relation we bear to each other is some what similar to that between two or three States of the American Union. Yet, for the purposes of the navigation laws of Britain we are as portions of different nations. An American vessel sailing between Victoria and looked upon in the light of a coasting vessel, though all these points are within British territory. They are therefore in this respect on the same looting as our Westminster, or Victoria and Stekin is not own vessels, and may compete with them or drive them out of the trade, from the superior rotection derived from their own laws. We say superior protection, for their laws give them the exclusive control of the coasting trade between their domestic ports, and our laws give them equal privileges with British bottoms in the intercolonial trade. The injustice towards British subjects in these colonies, wrought by this state of things, is manifest at a glance. Although we present every facility for ship building, position have evidently destined us for a competition with powerful neighbors. Now should be such change in the navi gation laws as would make our intercolonia rade a coasting trade. Either this, or reciprocity between the shipping of these colo nies and that of the Pacific States in the oasting trade of both countries is required, to ive fair play to our ship-building interest The entire or partial union of the three colonies might effect the former object, should the American Government refuse—as they probbly would-to alter their laws. The subject is well worthy of the investigation of brought by them before the Home and Colo- J. A. McCREA nial Governments in proper shape.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY

WEDNESDAY, February 11, 1863.

House met at 3:45, p. m. Present—The Speaker, and Messrs. Burnaby, Trimble, Ring, Franklin, and Foster.

Mr. Burnaby gave notice that on an early day he would introduce a bill to declare the fees, licenses, and dues payable for the entrances and clearances of vessels, and for inverse to remite for landing cools, and for licenses to permits for landing goods, and for licenses to scows, boats, and other small craft, in the ports of entry in Vancouver Island, other than Victoria and Esquimalt.

Mr. Ring's bill to constitute Inferior Courts of Civil Justice in Vancouver Island and its Dependencies passed a final reading.

The bill to declare the denominations of stamps to be used under the Stamp Act of 1862, was read a second time.

The two bills of supply were also read a second time, and passed to committee.

Heuse in committee—Mr. Franklin in the Heuse in committee—Mr. Franklin in the chair.—The bills of supply were passed without comment, and the committee rose.

Mr. Foster, chairman of the Committee on Standing Orders, reported that the proceedings taken with regard to the withdrawal of the Railway Bill had been altogether informal; they, however, recommended that the prayer of the petition be granted.

The House then adjourned until this afternoon at 3 o'clook. noon at 3 o'clock.

Chamber of Commerce

An adjourned meeting of this association took place at the Exchange Reading Rooms yesterday, at 2:30 p. m., when Mr. J. A. Mc Crea was voted into the chair, Mr. Jas. Lowe again acting as Secretary. By the direction of the Chairman the Sec.

North Bay came to Steilacoom on the above day for a supply of provisions which had been procured and placed in his canoe. Purposing to stay over night he left an Indian in charge to guard it. Shortly after night-fall three soldiers approached the cance, quieted the Indian by threatening his life and embarked for Victoria; taking, of course, the Indian and Mr. Sherwood's stock of pre-visions, which proved a windfall of the right kind for the journey before them. When they got far enough down the Sound to baffle pursuit they put the Indian ashore and pro-ceeded on their way. As fast as his legs would carry him the Indian wended his way back along the beach; but, by the time he reached Steilacoom, the deserters were pro-bably a long way off. The owner of the boat has had bud luck lately, as the above is the second he had lost in a similar man-ner. The desertions, it appears, from the other side of the water have been very nu-merous lately.

Review of American Affairs by a Union Paper. We have translated the following able review of American affairs from Le Courrier des Etats Unis. The article first appeared in the Stockholder, an American Union paper: "A French paper lately remiuded its readers that for six months together, during the Crimean war, the American dalies had a stereotyped heading "Sebastopol not yet taken." It was never taken into consideration by them that this war was carried on about two thousand miles from France and about two thousand miles from France and England, and those two nations with less than 70,000,000 of people had to cope with a giant like Empire on its own ground containing above 70,000,000 of inhabitants. What should we have to say to foreigners now, if they were to imitate the example set them here and head a column every day with "Bishpood not vet taken." Richmond Richmond not yet taken." Richmond tands at our own doors. We have 23,000,000 stands at our own doors. We have 23,000,000 of people to array against 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 of the South. And in the hands of our Government unlimited resources of every kind have been placed for accomplishing this great work—yet we have failed in our attempts to obtain this great prize.

Our reverses, it is to be hoped, will teach as modesty; for truly they are increasing fast enough to impress the minds of the most arrogant and vain among us. They bear in themselves useful lessons which we expect will not be lost at the next Presidential election. Were we inclined not to notice it would be obvious and would work its way to the remotest part of our hearts. We live at a period of little men. There is not a single superior intellect, a single man of heart and head who would be willing to accept a situation which makes him the humble tool of the capricious whims of the people. Course of Time. BY THOMAS CAMPBELL. The more we live, more brief appear Our life's succeeding stages; A day to childhood seems a year, And years like ages.

The gladsome current of our youth, Ere passion yet disorders, Steals, lingering like a river smooth, Along its grassy borders.

But as the careworn cheek grows wan, And sorrows shafts fly thicker, Ye stars that measure life to man, Why seem your courses quicker?

When Joys have lost their bloom and breath, And life itself is vapid; Why; as we reach the Falls of Death, Feel we its tide more rapid?

It may be strange—yet who would change Time's course to slower speeding? When one by one our friends are gone, And left our bosoms bleeding.

Heaven gives us years of fading strength Indemnifying fleetness; And those of youth a seeming length Proportioned to their sweetness. Foreign Items.

A JAIL BIRD'S TRICKERY .- Tricks are played by prisoners often without an ostensible object. I have a remembrance of one woman, named Jurvis, at Millbank, whose offorts to place her head in remarkable post efforts to place her head in remarkable positions caused great embarrassment to the officers in charge. Wherever there was space to squeeze a head, this woman's soon found its way, and there it would remain a fixture for hours, although its removal was generally at the option of the prisoner. In each of the refractory call doors is a small trap, used for passing the food to the prisoners, and through this apperture would the woman's head be thrust, with a silly, defiant expression of countenance. It was a ludicrous part of a matron's duty to stand in the ward, arguing with this woman, and begging her to take her matron's duty to stand in the ward, arguing with this woman, and begging her to take her head in; all that her expostulations elicited, by way of reply, being an idiotic stare. Endeavoring to open the door might have led to the dislocation of the prisoner's neck, and only an urgent remonstrance could be made. Jarvis, or "crying Jarvis," as she was termed by the prisoners was considered to be a litby the prisoners, was considered to be a lit-tle weak in intellect, and certainly this extrathe weak in intellect, and certainly this extra-ordinary freak does not warrant me in es-timating her as sane. The extra duty she entailed on her officer may be readily im-agined when medical orders were issued that the woman was not to be left with her head in that position, as, if her feet were to give way beneath her, death would infallibly ensue. The guard were accustomed to be called in to Jarvis's head at all hours of the day and to Jarvis's head at all hours of the day and night, and efforts were made to gently force it through the aperture again; if successful, the trap was immediately closed; if unsuccessful, a matron sat down to keep watch on this aggravating head. Strict orders were given not to open the trap of Jarvis's door; but the force of habit would lead the matron, altered more against to unfaster it when as

A Clever Swindler.—The Brockville Monitor says.—Some very andacious robberies have recently been committed in this neighborhood by an astute professor of the meameric art, dressed in women's clothes. Of insinuating manners and address this adventurer managed to get into the good graces of different respectable females in and about Brockville, whom he first magnetized most thoroughly, after the fashion of Professor Stone, and then robbed them, while completely under his control, of their valuables, such as watches and money. From what we can gather it is evident that the secondrel had first taken a thorough survey of the town and neighborhood, and carefully selected those parties possessed of valuables who could be most easily subjected to neighborhood. These he got immediately so completely under his control, as to tell him even where their valuables were kept, and to be incapable of offering the slightest opposition to his walking a way with their before their faces. After quitting Brockville the thiefin women's clothes was next heard of in Farmersville, where he managed to measmerise and fleece an innkeeper's wife of ten dollars, as we hear, and also a Yankee cattle dealer of all the money he had by him. As the latter was a distance from home, the magnetic thie charitably allowed him one dollar to defray his expenses. Every effort has been made to capture this expert robber, but hitherto without effect. The press should pass him round as quickly as possible, and caution the public to be on their guard. MARRIED.

Gout and Rheumatism.

The essence of these diseases lie in the blood, which has, donting through each vessel, the pain-giving poison, which irritates and inflames every tissue it comes in contact with, and produces the hot, swollen, clustic enlargement about the joints so characteristic of gouty diseases. The philosophy and the produce consists in overcoming this depravity in the blood which is rapidly purified by the use of the Phill. The Onlyment, when rubbed spon the skin, penetraces the system through the pores, acts in unison with the Phills, and soon effects a cure.
